

FEATURES, NYC GUIDES, RESTAURANTS

Where to order takeout Easter and Passover meals in NYC

POSTED ON MON, APRIL 6, 2020 BY 6SQFT

Photo by Robert Couse-Basker on Flickr

Although restaurants remain shuttered and large gatherings are prohibited, Passover and Easter festivities are forging ahead. With help from local New York City restaurants, catering companies, and delicatessens, handmade holiday meals can be delivered to your doorstep, keeping family traditions alive from the safety of home. Ahead, find places for to-go Seder dinners and Easter brunch and baskets, from Eli's Market to Economy Candy.

Passover

Eli's Market

Eli Zabar's grocery has remained open during the coronavirus outbreak, offering both groceries and prepared foods for pick-up from its 80th Street store and delivery. The market will offer traditional comfort foods and beverages for the holiday, like smoked whitefish salad, chopped liver, handmade matzoh, and entrees like brisket, filet of beef, turkey, and more. Find its complete catering catalog for Passover here.