

THINGS TO DO

Super Bowl LII parties in NYC: Head to these bars for food & drink specials

By Shaye Weaver

shaye.weaver@amny.com

Updated January 31, 2018 3:59 PM

PRINT SHARE ↗

Super Bowl Sunday is a holiday as far as New York City is concerned.

The game is of course the reason for the festivities, but it's also about cheering on your team with your friends, checking out the star-studded halftime show and having a reason to celebrate in the middle of winter.

But if hosting a party seems a daunting task this year, don't fear: bars are filled to the brim with food and drink specials. Win or lose, you can still have fun and let someone else worry about filling your friends' glasses.

So, while the Eagles and Patriots gear up for this year's Super Bowl on Feb. 4 in Minneapolis, it's the perfect time to lock down your plans for where to watch Kelly Clarkson sing the national anthem and Justin Timberlake bring sexy back.

Check out these spots for the city's coolest viewing parties.

Eli's Night Shift

Photo Credit: Eli's Night Shift

This late-night bar and eatery has a large 5-by-8-foot projector screen and a variety of game day eats, from Night Shift Nachos ($12) to jumbo wings ($12). If you're heading to the Night Shift in a large group, feel free to snag a reservation, and enjoy a growler of craft beer for the table. (189 East 79th St., elizabar.com)