

Where to Stock Up for a Long Weekend on Long Island

By ALISON S. COHN JUNE 28, 2017

On Saturday, a Bandier by the Beach pop-up opens at Bluestone Lane in Montauk. The shop's selection includes a color-block bra and leggings from Heroine Sport.

Fourth of July

Headed east for the long weekend? You can shop for provisions at Goop Mrkt, a reimagined general store opening on Thursday and filled with essentials for Goopies like a Kisuii ruffle-trim romper ($350), a rose quartz jade egg ($55) and health loaf bread — gluten-free, obviously — from Eli Zabar ($16). At 145 Main Street, Floor 1, Amagansett, N.Y.

On Saturday, the activewear purveyor Bandier will open a Bandier by the Beach pop-up at the Aussie cafe Bluestone Lane. Grab a cute Heroine Sport color-block bra ($85) and leggings ($155) for a free Nike Run Club workout at 10 a.m., with breakfast to follow. At 786 Montauk Highway, Montauk, N.Y. Sign up at bandier.com/studio-b.

That same day, Elizabeth and James will open a pop-up at the jewelry store Love Adorned with summer-ready accessories like oversize sunglasses ($185), alongside a hand-selected range of vintage embroidered jackets ($395) and floral kimonos ($495). At 156 Main Street, Amagansett, N.Y.

Also on Saturday, the Ovarian Cancer Research Fund Alliance Super Saturday annual charity shopping event promises deeply discounted designer items from more than 125 brands, including Vilebrequin and Bonpoint. At Nova's Ark Project, 30 Millstone Road, Water Mill, N.Y.
